

LOVE IN A GLASS AS THE BUTLER SAW IT

His Testimony Prevents Alimony Award to Mrs. George Saxton Barber.

COUNTER CHARGES MADE

Husband, Naming Geisenhainer, Accused of Fondness Toward Miss Singleton.

In the double divorce action between George Saxton Barber, well-to-do salesman for a large woolen house, and Mrs. Bernice Barber, who developed yesterday that real life for once approached the ingenuity of the movies. Testimony was given by a Japanese butler that he had seen Mrs. Barber kissing and embracing another man by a reflection in a table glass.

It did not appear how much weight Justice Cohnen gave the glass as a transmitter of evidence when he denied Mrs. Barber's application for $3,000 counsel fee and $100 a week alimony pending the trial of her own divorce suit. The proceedings have been going on for more than a year with minor strains from a third suit involved.

The first suit was started in August, 1915, by Mrs. Barber, who said she left Barber's home in April of that year because he had come home drunk every night for five years and also neglected him of relations with Miss Mary Singleton, a stenographer in the United States Arsenal at Picatinny, N. J. Barber denied this, and pointed out that the number of drinks which Mrs. Barber detected said he took "would incapacitate me or any living man from actual business."

Enter Mr. Geisenhainer. Later Barber, who is a nephew of the late Mrs. William McKinley, brought a counter suit, alleging an alleged affair between Mrs. Barber and her alleged lover, provided his mother stated her to $50,000 in money. Barber asserted that the accusations against Miss Singleton and himself were trumped up as part of a plot by Mrs. Barber to be freed from him so she could enjoy life with Charles K. Geisenhainer.

In March, 1915, the husband said when he and his wife had been married nine years, Geisenhainer was introduced to Mrs. Barber and her affection began to wander. Geisenhainer, according to Barber's affidavit, hired a costly automobile, and every morning while Barber was away would wait with the limousine around the corner from his apartment.

Mrs. Barber, the affidavit recites, would pass the time away in shopping and later pick up Geisenhainer, with whom she would have luncheon. Among the gifts from Geisenhainer to Mrs. Barber which her husband mentions was a saddle horse and a motor car. Barber said that while she was being taught to ride in Central Park Geisenhainer rode near enough in the motor car to catch her if she fell off. The car, with curtains drawn, also figures in Barber's account of visits to a road house near Jamaica, where he said his wife and Geisenhainer were known as "Mr. and Mrs. Taylor."

What the Butler Saw.

Then in April of last year, says Mr. Barber, his wife departed from their large home at Succasunna, N. J., which he had bought for her for $15,000, to live in three rooms and a kitchenette at 24 West Fifty-ninth street. Barber said the reason was Geisenhainer, who visited there frequently, and cited the table glass as part of his evidence. This table glass was under the particular care of John K. C. Chinen during the two weeks he was employed as butler. After telling of Geisenhainer's visits and several little breakfasts served in the bedroom the Japanese remarks: "On one occasion I served them cocktails while they were sitting at the table and Charlie accused Mrs. Barber of being Irish."

At another time Charlie, as the Japanese says Geisenhainer was known to him, was betrayed by the glassware. The butler was in another room, when he says he saw "Mrs. Barber and her companion, Charlie, kissing and hugging in the dining room. From a heavy door stood the Japanese declared he could perceive this by means of the reflection in the table glass.

Gordon Hild in Basement. Harry Hornaby, night superintendent of the apartment house, likewise told of the hospitality shown by Mrs. Barber to a Charlie "Gordon" and a heavy of detectives when they paid a call at 2 A. M. "Gordon," according to Hornaby, spent the rest of the night in a basement room, and "after that for several nights Gordon was careful about coming to the apartment."

Later in the summer, according to Barber, his wife gave up her apartment, as a sides accompanying her to Boston as "Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gordon." Barber says Geisenhainer managed to keep Mrs. Barber from being homesick several times at Succasunna. Barber was not speaking from first hand knowledge. From this domicile Barber had already removed himself and sought solace at Pine Terrace Inn, Dover, N. J.

Here he met Miss Singleton, besides a Mr. "Chapman" and a Miss "Wood," with whom he acknowledged he would not have been so corpulent if he had known they were his wife's detectives. On July 27 last a referee's report recommended a divorce for Mrs. Lillian K. Geisenhainer from Charles B. Geisenhainer, following suit in which she made Mrs. Barber correspondent and dragged in the names of a Sound steamer and a Boston hotel. Though a referee was appointed in the Barber suits, no decision has been made except of Justice Cohnen's denial of alimony.

"POLICE GAZETTE" BUILDING AFIRE

$20,000 Damage Done—Blaze Attributed to Spontaneous Combustion.

Fire in the Richard K. Fox Company's building, home of the Police Gazette, at Dover and Pearl streets, last night, caused an estimated damage of $20,000 to the building itself and to printing presses and other machinery. The blaze started on the third floor in the plant of the Empire City Job Printing Company and ate its way to the fourth floor, occupied by the Crescent Company, electrotypers.

Policeman Jones of the Oak street station saw the flames and turned in the alarm. A second alarm brought Deputy Chief Smokey Joe Martin and the police reserves under Capt. Jeremiah Mahoney. Martin believes the fire probably started from spontaneous combustion. The damage to the Police Gazette plant was chiefly from water.

The Vassar 1916 Club of this city is planning a fair to be held at the Hotel Manhattan, from 12 to 2 o'clock for the benefit of the Vassar Million Dollar Endowment. The recent announcement by President MacCracken that the $1,000,000 fund had been completed was based largely on the pledges of alumni who have still to raise the money to make good.

The class of 1916 has pledged $11,500, most of which is already in hand, and the coming fair, it is hoped, will help to complete the sum. Christmas presents of all descriptions, Christmas cards and all kinds of household necessities will be on sale. Admission will be free and luncheon and tea will be served.
